

New York's Premiere Full Service Computer Company Featured In Times Square!

e-Media in Times Square – "Fly High With e-Media of New York"

July 9th, 2007

e-Media of New York, a full service computer company based in Lake Ronkonkoma, New York, was given its time to shine in the bright lights of New York City's famed Times Square on July 9th & 10th, 2007.

According to Times Square's Web site, 1.7 million people visit the square each day.

The theme was "We believe..." Contestants had to include a short statement and picture of what they believe represents their small business best. e-Media was chosen by Dell Small Business for this special honor because of their unique presentation, and the way they demonstrated their commitment as a small business. Their motto? "Fly high with e-Media of New York!"

Stuart Bain, owner of e-Media of New York, said, "It was terrific to see my company advertised next to some of the world's largest corporations. I appreciate that Dell wants the world to "fly high with e-Media" as much as we do. The ad is a testament to our company's potential to deliver!"

Established in 2005, e-Media is a privately held full service computer company. e-Media offers low cost website building and hosting solutions that cater to individuals all the way to large corporations. They also employ trained technicians that have solutions to all your computer problems. One phone call...one company! Call e-Media of New York for all of your computer and website solutions! For more information visit emediaofny.com or call Stuart Bain at 631.285.1095.

To see e-Media's ad online, click here.